COMES TO A WEST BERKELEY FIRM

Leather Manufacture.

Among the various industries now existing in Berkeley which the GAZETTE has noticed in its columns from time to time, none needs a second notice more than that of the leather dressing establishment of Mr. Remond, successor to the firm of MacDonald and Remond. Situated almost in the extreme northwestern part of the town and out of the way of a large amount of public travel, it is not noticed as much as if located more centrally. Nevertheless a large business is constantly being done at this factory.

It's supplies come from all parts of the State and the manufactured articles go to all parts of the United States. Of late, however, the demand has become so great that the leather turned out is being used to a very large extent in home consumption. The harness leather in particular, has the highest name for quality of any turned out in America, first class medals of honor always being obtained at every exposition where it has been placed, the latest being the awarding of a first class diploma by the Oakland Exposition.

The proprietor, in order to get the reputation now acquired, has worked diligently and with good knowledge to turn out only articles of the very best kind. To do this one must know how to select his raw material in the first place, as well as to put it through the various processes afterwards. Mr. Remond thoroughly understands the business, and is a practical man in all its branches. Nothing escapes his eye or attention. He constantly avails himself of any improvements in his line of business made elsewhere, and at the same time is constantly making improvements himself which are suggested by a good mechanical mind.

It is but a few years since the factory started, and year by year it has grown. The time will not be long, if the rising progress continues in the same ratio, before Berkeley will be able to boast of the best factory of the kind existing in the United States.

Golden Gate.

The latest happy father is Mr. Axtell Bloomberg. It is a diminutive but welcome sample of the new woman.

The Epworth League social, to which the young people of the place are cordially invited, will occur next Friday evening at the residence of Miss Addie Beardsley.

The Methodist church people here are making extensive preparations for one of the most enjoyable affairs of the season in the shape of a real old-fashioned New England dinner, given by the society on February 22d.

Mrs. Mincher of the popular kinder garden school here, has a very interesting class in hand at present and the little tots are making rapid progress.

Schaechtle & Stone, contractors and builders here, have just completed a neat and comfortable residence for Mr. Mitternald on Fulton street.

B. F. Hudelson, State president of the A. P. A, has returned from an extended tour through the Northern part of the State in the interest of that order. He reports a very successful trip and generally increasing interest in the ideas he represents.

Rev. J. E. Henderson of the Methodist church and his people are testing the merits of a new order of prayer meeting which is said to be proving a most decided success. Upon the occasion of the regular Thursday night meeting, one half of the time is devoted to prayer and praise, and the other to social converse and other enjoyable recitations. Under this system these gatherings are rapidly becoming popular.

An accident which nearly proved serious occurred yesterday at the Judson Iron Works. The management there is testing the merits of the crude oil shipped from the southern part of the State as fuel. A pipe used in conveying this to the furnaces sprung a leak and a lively fire broke out, which luckily was put out before serious damage could result. The project of using the oil as above mentioned for fuel, is said to be proving a great success.

Some time since, a difficulty between E. W. Riner and C. A. Miller of this place, led to a personal encounter between the two men. Miller had Riner arrested for assault with a deadly weapon, but upon this charge the latter was acquitted. Miller again had him arrested, charging him with battery. Riner gave bonds for his appearance and went away to Grass Valley to reside and engage in business, Messrs. McCarty and Gifford of Golden Gate appearing as his sureties. When the case came up before Justice Clift in Oakland, Riner did not appear and the court deferred action for one week to give him an opportunity to do so. The case came up yesterday and as Riner was still absent, the court ruled him in default and fined him $50, which he will be obliged to shortly pay if he proposes to save trouble for his bondsmen.

In Haste To Marry.

Last summer two young men walked from Los Angeles to Berkeley for the purpose of entering the University. For the purpose of raising money to defray the expenses of getting an education they assumed the tramp plan and got a great deal of gratiutous advertising and consequently collected some means. While here Hughes took to the newspaper business and done some reporting work.

It now appears that Hughes was a married man the marriage having taken place in Chicago on the 10th of March 1894. He wants to have his marriage with Mabel S. Tyler annuled on the ground that he was not of the age of consent as at the time he was not 20 years old. The suit has been brought through Louis E. Beers, the plaintiff's guardian ad liten.

PROF. WM. C. JONES

ADDRESSES THE ALAMEDA LAW ASSOCIATION

Charges, Trial and Conviction of Forester Wm. Davis, Last Night.

Constitutional Decisions.

At the meeting of the Alameda County Law Association Wednesday evening Professor William Carey Jones of the University of California, delivered an interesting and instructive lecture on Constitutional Decisions of our Supreme Court. He divided the history of these decisions into three periods; the first being a period of liberal construction continuing for about fifty years, during which time the policy of the court was to extend its jurisdiction on the theory of the Federal government being self-creative. This period was followed by one of stricter construction, which lasted about twenty-five years, during which time the decisions indicate a tendency to support State rights. The third period in the history of these decisions is marked by a return to the policy followed in the first period, and extends from the civil war down to the present time.

As tending to illustrate the policy of the court during these periods Professor Jones cited numerous cases, among them being the comparatively recent case involving the killing of Judge D. S. Terry by David Nagle while Terry was attempting an assault upon Justice Field at Lathrop station. This case was cited as illustrative of the return of the court to a more liberal construction of the provisions of the Federal Constitution; for the court there decided that the Circuit Court had jurisdiction over Nagle, and on habeas corpus proceedings ordered him out of the custody of the State courts to be tried before the Circuit Court, where he was acquitted.

Speaking of that provision of the constitution which provides that no State shall deprive any person of life, liberty or property without due process of law, Professor Jones said this clause has given rise to great litigation and is perhaps, to the average American citizen, the most sacred thing in the constitution. It was taken from Magna Charta. The difficulty in construing this clause seems to be in the word "due" and it has given rise to quite a difference of opinion not only among lawyers but among members of the judiciary, and in consequence of this phrase the United States Supreme Court has acquired by writ of error jurisdiction of all cases where the party aggrieved can set up the claim that he has been deprived of life, liberty or property without due process of law. Professor Jones then quoted a part of a decision where the judge took occasion to say that the calender of the Supreme Court was crowded by appeals from State courts on the ground that the appellant had been deprived of life liberty and property without due process of law.

Speaking of the passage of the judicial act of 1789, passed by Congress at its first session after the adoption of the constitution, Professor Jones said: "The organization of the judicial department of the Federal government occurred immediately upon the assembling of the first Congress in 1789, and was referred to a committee consisting of Paterson, Johnson and Ellsworth. The report of this committee was attacked in the House by several members, one of whom said: 'For my part I contemplate with horror the effect of this plan. I see a foundation laid for civil war. To avest this evil I hope the House will reject the proposed system.'"

At the conclusion of Professor Jones' address he was given a vote of thanks by the association, and then by unanimous vote was placed upon the list of honorary members.

Berkeley Public Library.

Commencing Saturday, Feb. 1st, the Berkeley Public Library and Reading room will be open each day of the week from 2 p. m. to 6 p. m. and from 7 p. m. to 9:30 p. m. and will be closed each day from 6 p. m. to 7 p. m.

A Bond Meeting.

Representatives of the different Clubs in Berkeley, met last evening at School Director Boone's Academy, for the purpose of hearing from the sub-committees appointed to obtain information in relation to the wharf and schools. Mr. J. L. Barker occupied the chair, and Mr. Fred Wilkes performed the duties of Secretary.

There being no written reports to present, Mr. Scotchler gave verbally a partial one. From what he said appeared evident to some of the members if not all that he had mistaken the duties which he was appointed to perform. Exceptions were taken to what he did report, and it was voted to relieve him from any further duty in the matter concerning the wharf. The chairman appointed another committee to get the information which was wanted by those present. Those appointed to act were Chas. H. Spear, Philip Monroe and J. M. Foy, who are requested to make a written report at the meeting to be held at the same place on next Tuesday evening.

Professor Waterman who was appointed to collect information in regard to the schools, was not ready to make his report and was also given until the next meeting to furnish it.

Mr. W. R. Dickieson presented a proposition made by the GAZETTE in relation to the printing of documents for public circulation. The offer was considered a fair one but it was thought best to take no action in the matter until at the next meeting.

A Lecture for Berkeley.

A lecture upon "Descriptive and Characteristic Music" will be delivered at the Columbia Theatre Friday evening, February 21st, under the auspices of the Berkeley College faculty. This lecture was prepared by the late musician, J. H. Rosewald of San Francisco, who was taken sick and died on the evening which had been set for his delivery of the lecture, for the benefit of the "poor students' loan fund." The lecture is said to be an exceedingly able and interesting one, and a large attendance at the occasion of its delivery in February is anticipated. Messrs. Beel, Janlus and Coffin, and Mesdames Morey and Weigel will take part in a musical program which has been arranged for the occasion.

serious Charges.

Last evening there was quite an excitnig meeting of Court Ocean View No. 26 Foresters of America. Under the head of the order charges were preferred against Brother William Davis to the effect that his conduct was unbecoming an officer and a gentleman. He was ably defended by Brother Loebs who had to contend with more perjury to the square inch than a shoe maker ever could imagine even in his wildest dreams. It seemed as it there was a contest as to who should stand at the head of the way of prevaricating. To settle a doubt it was put to a vote and on the count it was found that Brother Lckleman had been selected by a good majority.

Counsel on both sides, after throwing mud enough to make a real estate man envious, allowed the presiding judge to turn the case over to the jury. Here is where trouble commenced again. It was a continuous wrestle for seven hours beto.e consciousness could be observed. Through its foreman a verdict of guilty was rendered, and the dsfendant was fined $9, or its equivalent, which will have to be paid next Thursday evening. At that time Brother Loebs will be tried for petty larceny, for stealing the chief ranger's mustache.

Trial of Speed.

At the West End there are a number of residents who own good horses, and each man thinks his own the best. In the course of conversation a day or two since, when several of these gentlemen happened to meet, the subject came up. The outcome of it was an agreement to have a trial of speed next Sunday afternoon on San Pablo avenue, near University. To make the matter still more interesting it was agreed that each one who desired to show the speed of his animal should put up $10, and the total amount to be divided in prizes. No doubt West Berkeley will be full of excitement at the time, and a large number of people will be on hand to see who owns the fastest horse.

HE WAS HANGED-

LLOYD MONTGOMERY, THE BOY MURDERER EXECUTED.

Phillip Ratz One of the San Francisco Debauchers Gets a Long Sentence.

Special dispatches to the GAZETTE.

Montgomery Hanged.

Albany, Or., Jan. 31.—Lloyd Bryson Montgomery, the self-confessed murderer of his father, mother and Dr. McKercher, was hanged at 7 o'clock this morning in the enclosure of the jail yard.

Montgomery exhibited wonderful pluck and did not flinch upon the scaffold.

Ratz Sentenced.

San Francisco, Jan. 31.—Philip Ratz, the most depraved and culpable member of the Lane gang whose vile actions against a number of little girls, when disclosed, horrified the entire city, was today sentened to twenty years' imprisonment in the State Prison.

Judge Wallace in pronouncing sentence partly reviewed the case and took occasion to explain the reason why Ratz had been so much more severely dealt with than Eugene Pardini, who was sentenced to but ten years imprisoment.

His Honor explained that the case of Pardini was not so flagrant, inasmuch as he han merely attempted to commit the more depraved crime of which Ratz had been adjudged guilty.

Before sentence was finally pronounced L. Pistolesi, Ratz' attorney, moved for a new trial upon several grounds, the most important of which was the fact that the only testimony adduced to prove that the girl was under the age of consent was that of the child herself, and that, as she was an accomplice, her testimony was incompetent.

Judge Wallace decided that the point was not well taken and denied the motion, but a stay of execution for ten days was allowed, in order to file a bill of exceptions.

William Smith, who committed the crime of grand larceny, was sentenced to two years' imprisonment.

Could Not Float Her.

New York, Jan. 31.—At high tide today, with the wind northeast and blowing eight miles an hour, an effort was made to pull the steamer St. Paul out of the sand off Long Branch, but the great craft moved only a few feet. The probability of the St. Paul being floated today is remote, but an effort will be made again at the next high tide.

Not Missing.

The story published in the Advocate last evening, and also in the city papers this morning, that Frank O'Brien was missing, is a fake.

He returned from a trip to Martinez on Tuesday evening last, and has been at home ever since.

The South Berkeley Fire Company is fitting up its engine-house with gymnastic apparatus and will make athletic exercises an important part of the duties of its members. The building has recently been completed and quite a quantity of appliances have already been put in place.

George Inker of West Berkeley was noticed climbing telegraph poles and cutting up other antics this morning and his friends thought that he had gone crazy, and a number of his friends rounded him up and found out that he was not crazy but only jubilant over the arrival of a native daughter at his house this morning.

The Berkeley Orchestral Society, with an active membership of forty, will give its second concert this season tonight at Shattuck Hall, under the leadership of Alex T. Stewart, and assisted by Walter C. Campbell, basso; Mrs. F. M. Husted, soprano; H. Clay Wysham, flutist, and Armand Solomon, violinist.

Rev. Edward B. Payne announces that Rev. Geo. B. Batcheler of Boston, a representative Unitarian and secretary of the American Unitarian Association, will preach in Stiles Hall next Sunday evening at 7:30. Mr. Batcheler comes to this coast to acquaint himself with the conditions of liberal religious work here, and to encourage the churches of his denomination in their labors.

Harry Rodgers, the Pacific Grove dude, wasn't in the State University long before he got himself into a peck of trouble with several of his schoolmates. The four-page journal published in the Portuguese language at Haywards, Alameda county, will in all probability be moved to San Pablo. It is called the "O Amigo dos Catholicos." The Rev. Father Gloria, pastor of St. Paul's Church there, is the editor, and the gentleman, who is a masterly scholar, will no doubt make it successful; besides Father Gloria has become quite popular amongst his parishioners.

Mrs. W. J. Colville expresses herself as being very well pleased at the reception she has met with in Berkeley during her course of lectures. They are well attended and the discourses receive close attention. She will lecture on Saturday next, taking for the subject "Healing by Christian Apostles; its Parallels today." There is always something to learn at these gatherings and Berkeleyans have found it out.

The fifty-seventh regular meeting of the Philosophical Union of the State University will be held this evening at Professor George Howison's lecture room in North Hall. The topic for consideration is "The True Philosophy of Biological Science and the Bearing of the New Biology on the Question of Teleology." This question is treated in the sixth chapter of Professor John Watson's work, Comte, Mill and Spencer," which the union is now studying and which will be discussed in a course of lectures to be delivered in Berkeley by the author himself some time in May. Professor W. E. Ritter of the biology department and Dr. Emmet Ritter will read papers, to be followed by a general discussion.

The little story of Will Schmidt and his colored band of serenaders will appear tomorrow.

HE DESERVED IT.

HENRY SEIMER SENTENCED TO TWELVE YEARS

For Assaulting a Little Girl at Temescal Some Seven Months Ago.

A Stiff Sentence.

Henry Seimer was sentenced yesterday to twelve years in Folsom for a felonious assault upon an eight-year-old girl named Myrtle Needham.

The crime of which Seimer was convicted was committed in Temescal last summer. Seimer is thirty years of age and has been well thought of by those who know him, and the severe sentence he received has created a great deal of comment.

He denied strenuously that he assaulted the child, and said the scheme was one of blackmail to get his bank account. He says he had a demand made on him for $250 and paid it and left, and the blackmailers heard he had $700 remaining and wanted that, too, and because he did not give it up they brought him back from Seattle.

Yesterday Attorney Chapman put in an appearance in the case for the first time, and made a special effort to get a new trial for Seimer, Judge Greene would not allow it, however.

The Court said it believed Seimer was a man of integrity and was well considered by his neighbors. "But he fell" said the Court, "and I believe he is very sorry now for his acts. The statute places his crime on a footing with robbery and murder in the second degree. It is left to the discretion of the Court to fix the punishment from five years up. This is a case, where, to some extent at least, the punishment should fit the crime. It was very heinous. It is appalling that such a crime should be committed in a community like this."

The Rodgers Case.

Early this forenoon there was a large congregation of students at the Town Hall drawn there perhaps from curiosity as some of their number were defendents. It was about 11 o'clock when Deputy District Attorney Len Church made his appearance. Very quickly the lobby was filled up by students principally. Some extra noise having been made Justice James spoke some words of caution regarding the actions of the lobby and stated that in case of any untoward conduct, somebody would be liable to be put under arrest for contempt of court.

A jury trial was waived and the prosecuting witness was placed upon the stand and gave his version of the whole matter. The Court adjourned until 1:45 when other witnesses will be introduced and the whole afternoon is liable to be consumed in taking testimony.

The young lady who figures in the case, and is the alleged cause of the trouble, was present, in company with a lady friend. Whether she will be put upon the stand for rebuttal testimony remains to be seen. Should that be the case it is very probable that she will say that she was not annoyed in the least particle by Rogers.

The case is being given much more prominence than is called for. As the students feel that the whole student fraternity must be defended in this case, and as the San Francisco and Oakland papers all have students as correspondents, it is quite natural that not only must the case be written up quite freely, but it must be done in the manner as seen through their eyes.

THE RIGHT RING.

Senator Tillman of South Carolina made a speech in the Senate on Wednesday last that will reverberate from one end of the continent to the other, the way he handled President Cleveland and Senator Sherman and also Secretary Carlisle will be applauded by the masses even though he departed from the usual dignity with which United States Senators are supposed to conduct themselves. The time has come when plain language must be used. The people of the United States are becoming worse than slaves, as they are owned body and soul by bankers and corporations, and never before in the history of this country have they been made to feel the yoke to such an extent as they have during the present administration.

His references to President Cleveland were all true, for there is not one person in a thousand but what believes Mr. Cleveland is a silent partner of the Wall street combine. No other President ever entered the White House comparatively poor, who has become so wealthy as President Cleveland is reported to be at the present time. While Mr. Tillman's speech was fiery and cutting, it will stimulate the people to demand their rights, and to compel the men they send to Congress to act for the people instead of a syndicate. There are several questions now before Congress that the people are watching very closely, and the Senators and Congressmen from the different States will hold them to a strict account for their votes.

DR. BROWN'S CASE.

There seems to be a great difference of opinion in reference to the action of the Congregationalist ministers and the deacons of the Church in reference to the guilt or innocence of the Rev. Dr. Brown and the latest ... has been to whitewash him. We have all been taught to hold religion as sacred, but the actions of those who pretended to investigate Dr. Brown will greatly strengthen the ranks of unbelievers and lessen the influence of the churches throughout the land.

From all the evidence that has been made public, Dr. Brown, if he is an innocent man, has been keeping mighty bad company, and the fact that he still has Mattie Overman in his house as a member of his family, causes even those who are unwilling to believe that he is a licentious individual, to waver in their faith. Nearly every public man or women that has fallen from grace during the last decade, has been undone by letter writing and we believe that the Mattie Overman letters will prove the undoing of both Mr. Brown and Mrs. Overman.

The friends and admirers of Dr. Brown did not do themselves nor the cause of religion any good the other night, when they hissed Mrs. Sarah Cooper one of the most respected members of the church, when she had the courage to say what she thought of the pastor and demand of him a statement as to the Overman letters.

This pastor Brown promised to do on the very next day, but he failed to keep his promise, and hid behind the statement that his attorney had forbidden him to speak.

As Mrs. Cooper has many friends in the church who will stand by her it is believed that if Dr. Brown continues to act as pastor of the church that it will go to pieces.

In the meantime the public is anxiously awaiting the outcome of the trouble, and if Dr. Brown is guilty he will receive that censure that will forever retire him to oblivion, and if innocent he will be given such an ovation that blackmailers and adventuresses will hesitate a long time before they attack the character of any public man.

SHOULD INFORM HIMSELF.

A correspondent of the Advocate in its issue of Wednesday evening took to task the members of the Board of Trustees because there were not more electric lights scattered about town. If he had read the proceedings of the Board of Trustees, or attended any of the meetings he would have known that the Board of Trustees, through its electric light committee, has been trying for several months to get additional lights put up. A schedule of the number of lights and the streets upon which they were to be placed was adopted by the Board, and the Electric Light Company was ordered to put them up. This the manager at that time refused to do. The Board then took steps to have the Electric Light Company's contract with the city declared void.

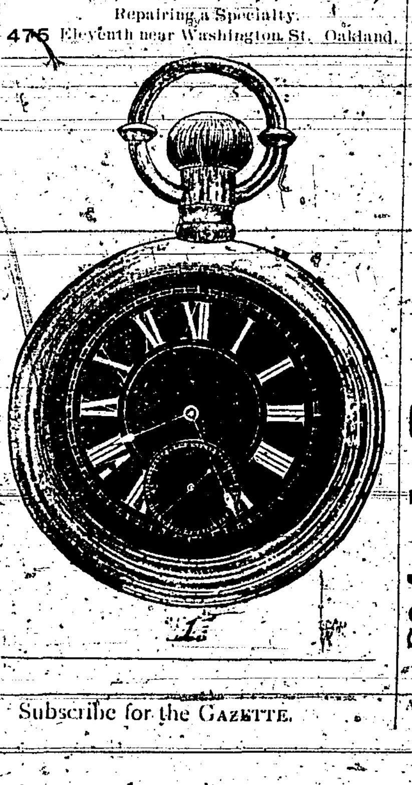

About this time there was a change in management in the Company and two weeks ago Mr. Britton, the President of the company appeared before the Board and informed it that he was willing to place the extra lights ordered by the Board and also to place lights in any part of the city when directed by the Board. He promised to commence the work at once and push it to completion as fast as possible. Since that time the weather has been such that it was impossible to plant posts and string wire, but the company will keep its word and soon all the additional lights ordered will be in position and burning.

Such kickers as the Advocate correspondent should not be allowed to air their spite against the Board in the columns of any newspapers, for the untruthful statements that he makes only hurts the good name of the town. It is known who the correspondent is even though he was ashamed to sign his name and it is also known that he is an enemy to any town improvements and that his evident desire for additional lights was only to get an excuse to air his personal grievances against certain town officers.

Arctic Sunburn.

To hear of suffering from heat in the arctic regions sounds incredible to those who have never been there. Lieutenant Gilder relates the experience of his party from this cause while one summer in King William's Land and declares that probably nowhere on earth is the traveler more annoyed by sunburn than in the frigid zone. The heat of ordinary exercise compels him to throw back the hood of his coat, and by thus exposing the head not only his entire face becomes blistered, but—especially if he is fashionable enough to wear his hair cut short on the back of the head—the entire scalp is affected about as severely as if a bucket of scalding water had been poured upon him.

At a later period Lieutenant Schwatka's entire party, while upon a sledge journey from Marble island to Camp Daly, were so severely burned that not only their faces but their entire heads were swollen to nearly twice their size. And a fine looking party they were. Some had faces so swollen that their eyes were completely closed on awakening from sleep. When one was fortunate enough to be able to see the others, he could not refrain from laughing. All dignity was lost. Even the unjust commander of the party was a laughing stock, and, though he knew why they laughed at each other, he could not understand why he should excite such mirth. Pretty soon he saw his face in a mirror and found that when he tried to smile his lips were so thoroughly swollen that the effect was anything but happy. The contortion expressed sentiment, but hardly that of pleasure. He could readily have been taken for a grimacing idiot, or a malicious lunatic, according to the preference of the beholder.—Cassell's Magazine.

Barber's Peculiarities.

"Did you ever know," said a Ninth street barber, "that certain men who come into this shop to be shaved exert a queer hypnotic influence over one or more of the barbers? It's a fact. Now, there's a man over there at the next chair but one. He doesn't look like a nervous fellow, does he? No! Well, he isn't nervous as a rule, but there's a certain man about town whose very appearance in the doorway sets that man shivering like a man in a fit. He could no more shave that particular customer than fly. Another man who used to work in this shop a couple of years ago was similarly affected, but to a greater degree, by a prominent business man, a Mr. B——. Whenever Mr. B—— came into the shop, the barber would grow deathly pale and quiver spasmodically. It frequently compelled him to knock off work for a whole day, and finally the boss had to discharge him. Fact! Here's another funny thing. Did you ever know that the average barber hates nothing so much as to have to shave a man's upper lip? I don't know why it is, but I feel that way myself. I'd rather lose a day's pay than shave off a man's mustache, and when a smooth faced man comes into this shop you ought to see the way each of us 'soldiers' and 'monkeys' around, so as to keep him from getting in our chairs."—Philadelphia Record.

Locomotives.

The other day a gentleman who is at the head of a firm that makes locomotives got off a train at the station and walked forward to the splendid engine that had pulled the express over the country to New York at a flying rate of speed. He spoke to the engineer, explaining who he was, and the two talked about "her," as they called the great mass of steel and iron, as if it were a human being. They were both proud of her, the engineer claiming there wasn't another like her on the rails.

"I don't say that," the locomotive manufacturer said to a friend as they walked away, "but it is true that another locomotive built on the same model by the same workmen with the same materials will not do the same work. There's a hitch somewhere beyond our understanding which makes a difference in the hauling power." Which is curious when you think of it and makes the engine seem almost human.—New York Times.

Time.

Time warns us with a voice that even the sagest discredit too long and the silliest believe too late.—Wisdom walks before it, opportunity with it, and repentance behind it; he that hath made it his friend will have little to fear from his enemies, but he that hath made it his enemy will have little to hope from his friends.—Colton.

His Sacrifice.

Mamma—Yes, darling, those dear little boys have no father and no mother—and no good Aunt Jane. Aren't you sorry for them?

Freddy—Oh, poor little boys (with cheerful alacrity)! Mummy, dear, may I give them Aunt Jane?—New York Recorder.

His Sweetheart and His Tailor.

A young man whose income is by no means sufficient to keep up his style of living received a tailor's bill. He is engaged to a young lady who is the happy possessor of a comfortable bank account. The young man's tailor sent him a bill with the remark written on it that it was long past due. When he received the bill, he was engaged in writing a note to his fiancee and in some way had his attention called away as soon as it was finished. He returned to his desk, placed the tailor's bill instead of the note in an envelope and directed it on his typewriter, which fact was all that saved him. When he called, she was very indignant, but he was quick witted and began berating the tailor for sending her an account which he disputed in order to prejudice her against him out of spite because the young man would not pay an unjust claim. The next morning the lover told the tailor all about the affair, paid the bill, and the maker of clothes helped him out by sending the girl an apology, by which kindness he obtained an order for two suits of clothes.—Washington Post.

Shortening the Time.

Friend—Doesn't the journey to and from the country every day seem very long?

Mr. Suburb—Long? It's too short. When I take the train in the morning, I know I've got to pinch in and work like a horse the moment the train reaches the city. That makes the journey seem too short, doesn't it?

"I presume it does. But how about the journey back?"

"Well, I always remember after I start that I've forgotten something my wife wanted particularly, so that ride is always over too soon."—Pearson's Weekly.

What a man does with his wealth depends upon his idea of happiness. Those who draw prizes in life are apt to spend tastelessly, if not viciously, not knowing that it requires as much talent to spend as to make.—E. P. Whipple.

THE WIND THAT SHAKES THE BARLEY.

Sing hey for the wind in the barley green,
And the great clouds drifting over;
For the dear brown sails, far out, that lean
To the kiss of the sea, their lover.
Sing hey for the fields of barley green,
With the road wind rushing [illegible]
And hey for the path that runs between
Where my dearest waits for her lover.

THE BLOND BRAKEMAN'S STORY.

It May Be Read With Profit by Present Day Record Breakers.

The Railroad club met Tuesday evening in the usual place, and after a short business session the boys drifted into "shop" conversation. The fast run of the general manager's special from Hope to Missoula was commented on, and the talk on fast runs became general. Several stories of remarkable time made on different occasions were related, and when the blond brakeman got the floor he saw he was expected to break the record. And he did.

"Speaking of fast runs," said he, "why, that little Montana Union line lays over anything I ever saw. No Dutch clocks or anything else to hold a man down there. I worked for that road when Bob Smith was dispatcher, and when he told the boys to 'wheel 'em' we all knew what it meant. One day we were going north and were delayed in various ways until we reached Stewart. Bob wired the con. at that point that he wanted our train to get to Garrison just as quick as God would let us. We had a clear track when we started, and it wasn't long before the telegraph poles looked like a picket fence. The biggest burst of speed was reserved for the home stretch—from Deer Lodge to Garrison—11 miles. We didn't stop at Deer Lodge, but as we approached that place the engineer sounded the whistle as usual, and you may take my head for a football if the 'slow' sign in the Garrison yards wasn't passed by our train before that whistle had ceased to sound."

This made the boys look weary, but the "braky" hadn't finished yet. He continued:

"Well, we put our train away and were resting ourselves when we glanced up the track and saw a dark streak approaching at a lightning gait. We were astounded for an instant, but as it slowed up we readily recognized it as the shadow of the train we had just brought in."

And the boys all rose up, and after presenting the relator with a regularly signed license the club adjourned.—Missoula Silverite.

A Beginning In Literature.

For my first effort to sail the sea of letters it occurs to me that I ought to say that my father's literary reputation cannot be held responsible.

I had reached (to take a step backward in the story) the mature age of 13. I was a little girl in low necked gingham dresses. I know, because I remember I had on one (of a purple shade and incredibly unbecoming to a half grown, brunette girl) one evening when my first gentleman caller came to see me. I felt that the fact that he was my Sunday school teacher detracted from the importance of the occasion, but did not extinguish it. It was perhaps 8:30, and, obediently to law and gospel, I had gone up stairs.

The actual troubles of life have never dulled my sense of mortification at overhearing from my little room at the head of the stairs, where I was struggling to get into that gingham gown and present a tardy appearance, a voice distinctly excusing me on the ground that it was past her usual bedtime and she had gone to bed. Whether the anguish of that occasion so far aged me that it had anything to do with my first literary undertaking I cannot say, but I am sure about the low necked gingham dress, and that it was during this particular year that I determined to become an individual and contribute to The Youth's Companion.

I did so. My contribution was accepted and paid for by the appearance in my father's postoffice box of the paper for a year, and my impression is that I wore high necked dresses pretty soon thereafter and was allowed to sit up till 9 o'clock. At any rate, these memorable events are distinctly intertwined in my mind.—Elizabeth Stuart Phelps in McClure's Magazine.

Uncertainty and Certainty.

Two men met unexpectedly in the corridor of a down town office building.

"Hold on, William! What's your hurry? How are you? You look worried. Anything wrong?"

"Not much, but, to tell you the truth, I've just left —— and I can't [illegible]

"So so. I've just [illegible] disappointment, that's all."

"You take it easily."

"Think so? I've had a deal on hand for three months, and I expected to close it out today, but this morning the other party told me frankly that his principals couldn't take it up. Now it's off my mind and I'm glad of it."

"Sure there's no funny business?"

"Sure."

"I wish I was. So long."

One man smiled and the other scowled.—New York Times.

He Understood.

Paul Louis Courier, when bitterly assailed by a French professor, quietly remarked: "I fancy he must be vexed. He calls me Jacobin, rebel, plagiarist, thief, poisoner, forger, leper, madman, impostor, calumniator, libeler, a horrible, filthy, grimacing ragpicker. I gather what he wants to say. He means that he and I are not of the same opinion, and this is his only way of putting it."

The war with France lasted from July 9, 1798, to Sept. 30, 1800, and the number of men engaged, in the naval force alone, was 4,593. The land forces raised for this campaign cut no figure.
